

Social and Personal

THE most interesting event for the early part of March will be the advent of Madame Slavko Groultch, wife of the Serbian Under Secretary of Foreign Affairs.

On Tuesday a reception will be given in the Clover Room of the Bellevue-Stratford, at which Madame Groultch will speak informally on her work and mission.

Mrs. Randal Morgan will give a luncheon for Mrs. Howard Wood, Mrs. John G. Carruth will entertain at luncheon, to be followed by auction, at the Bellevue-Stratford, and in the evening Mrs. Joseph G. Rittenhouse, of the Belgravia, will also give a bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Langdon E. Mitchell, of 2320 De Lancey place, will entertain at dinner on Wednesday in honor of their niece, Miss S. Worthington Mitchell, debutante daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Kearsey Mitchell.

Miss Harriet Gale Henry, of 1510 Pine street, will entertain at cards on Thursday afternoon. The sewing class organized by Mrs. Charles Cutler Harrison, composed of a number of members of the Colonial Dames, will meet also.

The second meeting of the dancing class held in the Rittenhouse, organized by Mrs. Roland R. Foulke, Mrs. J. Nelson Purviance, Mrs. Henry K. Dillard, Jr., Mrs. H. Evan Taylor and Miss Mary Coates will take place that evening also.

Society is so engrossed in sewing and reading on Friday that there is little time for much else. The "Armington Society" meets in the afternoon in the home of Mrs. William Woodward Arnett, 215 Pine street, and the reading classes arranged by Mrs. J. Bertram Lippincott, of 1712 Spruce street, and Mrs. William W. Porter, of 184 South Rittenhouse square, also take place on this day.

Mrs. Charles Howard Colket, of 2008 De Lancey place, will entertain at cards in the afternoon. An informal tea, with dancing, will be given by the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Perry S. Allen, of 2124 Spruce street, at the Bellevue-Stratford in honor of their guests, W. Woodside Hoblitzell and James H. Preston, Jr., of Baltimore.

The Saturday evening dancing class will also be held at the Philadelphia Cricket Club. Several dinners have been planned to precede it, among which will be that of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Verner, of St. David's, in honor of their daughter, Miss Eleanor Verner. Miss Agnes Allen, daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Perry S. Allen, will be guest of honor at a dinner to be given by her parents before the dance.

Mr. and Mrs. William Pittman Brown, of 21 Summit avenue, Chestnut Hill, will entertain at dinner, when covers will be laid for 14.

HAVERFORD—The Dramatic Club of the Haverford School gave a delightful entertainment last night at the Merion Cricket Club when its members presented "Handy Andy."

The play, in three acts, was a charming Irish country sketch, comprising the love complication of Handy Andy, the stable boy and general man of work on an Irish squire's estate, and a mixup over "important papers," which ended in establishing "Andy's" rights to a dukedom.

Paul A. Vannamin, Jr., who so cleverly impersonated Handy Andy, gave full credit, as did the other members of the cast to the careful coaching of Stephen B. Knowlton, member of the faculty of the Haverford School.

The cast was as follows: Handy Andy..... Paul A. Vannamin, Jr. Squire Egan..... Oscar E. Carot Dick Dawson..... Rufus D. Jones. Mad Nance..... John V. Newlin Mr. Murphy..... Fellows Thompson Oonah Rooney..... Schuyler Lee Ruffan..... Barclay Warburton, Jr. Ruffan..... Townsend Ludington Mr. Furlong..... W. J. H. Dye Squire O'Tracy..... Charles W. Bergner Edward O'Conner..... Parker Hipple Fanny Dawson..... Franklin Howey Simon..... Richard Kinnard

Between the second and third acts Schuyler Lee, as Oonah Rooney, and Paul A. Vannamin, Jr., as Handy Andy, gave a very clever Irish polka dance in an appropriate woodland scene. The music during the play was well rendered by the mandolin club of the school, under the direction of Paul Eno.

WHAT MILADY WEARS

WITH the first signs of spring, evidenced by the Southern exodus, milady adopts all the latest frilleries of feminine fashions, and from the top of her small, carefully coiffed head, surmounted by its wee, perky bonnet, to the tip of her daintily shod feet she looks like a picture out of Godey's Book during the mid-Victorian era.

The greatest boon to womankind of the present fashion is the comfortable widening of the skirts, although as the spring advances vague foreshadowings of hooped and quilled skirts cause a decided unrest, for in the rush and hurry of modern everyday life the voluminous and unwieldy clothes of our great-grandmothers would be a serious and unwelcome innovation.

One of the new wide skirts is being worn by Miss Hope McMichael. It is of beige broadcloth, with the fulness introduced over each hip. The coat is a redingote model. Miss McMichael's hat is of beige and her stoles and muff are of skunk fur.

Mrs. Edward Norris wears a very good-looking street costume. Her three-quarter-length caracoat is cut away at the front and rounded at the back, hanging rather loosely. Her skirt is of black broadcloth, with buttons on one side. Mrs. Norris' hat is rather a large sailor shape, the upper part of red velvet, with a facing of black. A small French flower is the only trimming. With their costume Miss Norris wears gray spats.

Miss Jean C. Bullitt wears a smart military suit of dark blue cloth, made with epaulettes of black braid and trimmings of brass buttons. The skirt has small flat pockets, which are formed in box pleats of the material, and is rather full.

A small military tricorne hat of black velvet, trimmed with gold braid and a gold and black cockade, is worn with the suit.

A good-looking tailleur of chocolate colored chiffon broadcloth was worn the other day by Miss Margaret Bannard while taking tea at the Bellevue-Stratford. The skirt was circular and the coat, which was three-quarter length, was braided and pleated. With this costume was worn a wide-brimmed brown hat, trimmed with a tan quill, which spread across the front.

The first of the midweek thea dansants was given Wednesday afternoon at the Bellevue-Stratford, and a number of persons dropped in between matinee and dinner time or, in the case of the men, after office hours. These dances will continue through Lent on Wednesdays and Saturdays.
